STATE POLITICS PRESENT STATUS

DAVIDSON REITERATES THAT HE WILL NOT RUN AGAIN.

FIVE DESIRE THE NOMINATION

Both Senatorial and gubernatorial contests will be exciting—Other State News.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., April 16.—Governor James O. Davidson is up in Wausau county with a big pair of rubber boots and a long trout rod, casting flies into placid pools, deeply interested in the game of luring speckled beauties for a camp frying pan. To one of the last callers before the start from the executive chamber he reiterated his determination to retire from politics, declaring that while he would not be averse to running for governor until the completion of the new station house in course of construction, he thought there were plenty of candidates in the field and he would stay out.

It is believed that this is his final word and that he will relinquish those admirers who still desire him to become the favorite candidate of the field of republican gubernatorial aspirants. Down at Lake Monona carpenters are pounding together a cottage which the governor expects to occupy this summer while Messrs. Lewis, McDevore, Fairchild, Stange and Barker struggle for the nomination.

Next January, Mr. Davidson proposes to quit office after a continuous service of more than a dozen years as state treasurer, lieutenant governor and governor. It is believed that the situation with respect to candidates for the republican nomination for United States senator and governor has become fixed, that there will be no new entrants into the race and no changes unless perhaps one or two gubernatorial aspirants withdraw.

Senatorial Race.
Two candidates are running for the senatorship—Senator La Follette, seeking another term, and Samuel A. Cook, former congressman, gathering up the Taft administration support and the opposition that has ever been arrayed against the present senator. The La Follette headquarters have been opened in this city, the preparation of enormous quantities of literature and carefully compiled lists of voters is now in progress, the senator himself is expected soon to enter a speaking campaign in the state and his fight for reelection is on.

Mr. Cook has developed a wide organization, recruited out of that which made him second in the last election and has also been helped by the powerful organization which successfully pressed the claims of Senator Isaac Stephenson in the campaign of 1908. The issues as between these two men—Cook and La Follette—are quite clearly drawn.

By his recent speech in the senate on the administration interstate commerce bill, Senator La Follette definitely set himself down as a bitter and implacable assailant of the administration of President Taft. "Interference" will be the loudest slogan of the La Follette side in this fight.

Mr. Cook is now preparing his platform, but it is already known that he looks with disfavor upon blocking the efforts of President Taft and the prevailing republicans who are working out the fulfillment of republican party platform pledges at Washington. He is extending his organization particularly among the farmers of the state, and has a good congressional record of work for farmers and day-laborers to show as an assurance of what he will endeavor to do if sent again to Washington.

Content For Governor.
In the contest for the republican nomination for governor there are now two outstanding county opponents—Capt. William Mitchell Lewis of Racine, maker of patent medicines, while the "wet" side of the saloon question seemed to have gotten the better of the recent spring elections in this state, the county option issue will doubtless not be small figures in the campaign, but neither Barker nor Lewis is now looked upon as formidable.

Lewis has opened active headquarters in Milwaukee, has hired half a dozen experienced political newspaper men and is spending no small amount of money. He also claims to be the choice of La Follette. There are also two candidates from Milwaukee—Senator E. T. Fairchild, whose platform is mainly anti-county option and who is said to be the choice of the middle La Follette people, and E. C. McDevore, who is silent on county option, but known to be a "wet" to the idea, and whose friends are insinuating that he and not Lewis is the La Follette choice.

The fifth candidate is John Strang, present lieutenant governor, a resident of Oshkosh with a large paper mill at Neenah. He is a La Follette man at odds with "Dibs" on prohibition, and now shouting loudly against an alleged combination of eastern capitalists who have secured options on a majority of the water power of Wisconsin. This situation is not likely to make much development for perhaps three months, but in the meantime the headquarters work will be busy with organization work and there will also be the spending tour of La Follette.

HYDE TRIAL TODAY POSTPONED AGAIN

Owing To Illness Of State Witness Case In Continued Until

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Kansas City, Mo., April 16.—On account of Dr. Twyman, a state witness, being stricken with appendicitis, the trial of Dr. Hyde for the murder of Col. Scope, was continued until Monday.

In the event of Dr. Twyman's death before Monday the case will go to trial immediately. If his illness is not fatal, but lingering, the state may ask that the jury be dismissed and the case continued indefinitely. Such a course might be opposed by the defense.

At the operation of Dr. Twyman this morning, Dr. Jackson diagnosed the case as acute "dissecting" which is even more dangerous than appendicitis. Dr. Twyman passed the operation successfully.

One of the early arrivals in the court room was Dr. Hall of Kirksville, Mo., who is jointly indicted with Mrs. Anna Vaughn for poisoning her husband, Prof. Vaughn.

Dr. Hall greeted Dr. Hyde and was introduced to Mrs. Hyde. He talked with them for several minutes and neither mentioned the case. The physicians had never met before.

BOY CRUSHED UNDER WHEELS OF A WAGON

Harold Magoom of Whitewater Run
Over by Load of Hay and Almost Instantly Killed.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

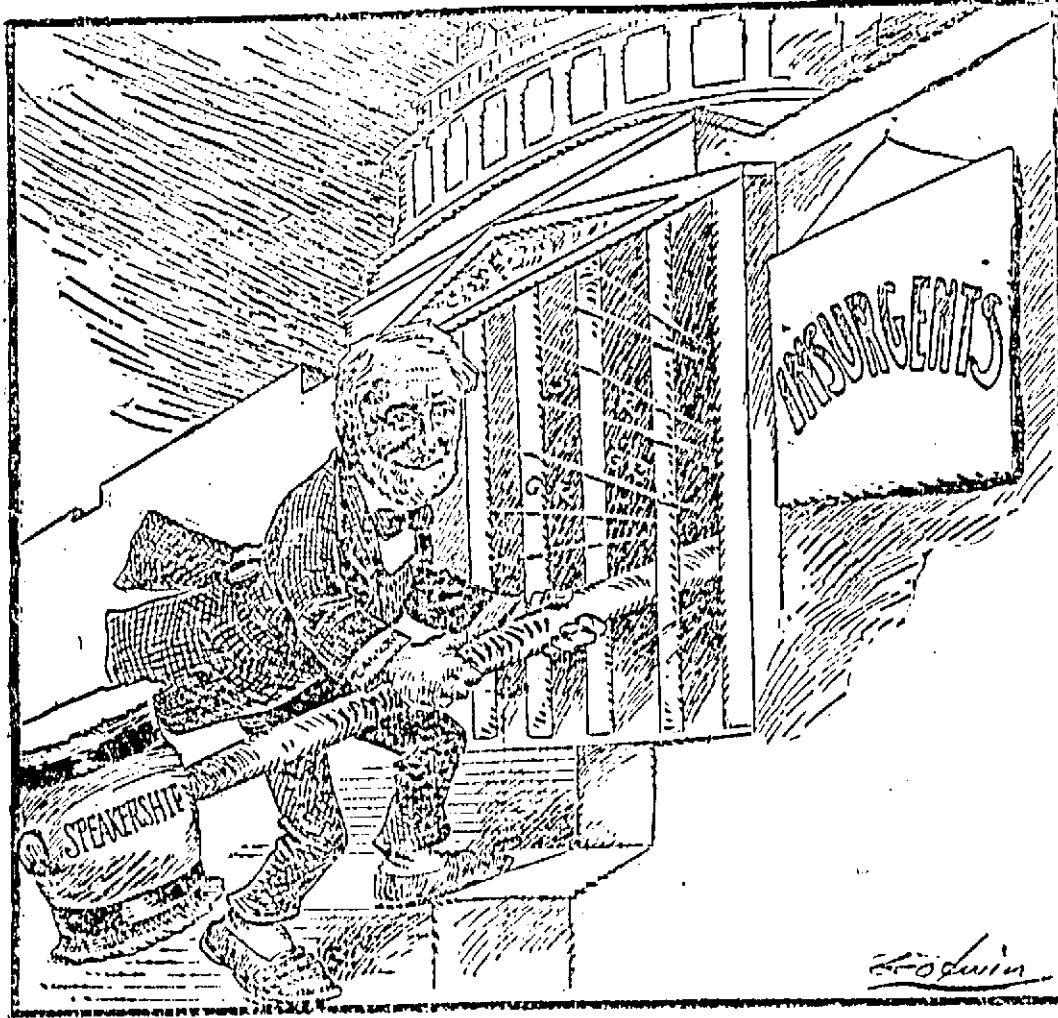

Richmond, April 15.—Harold Magoom, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Magoom of Whitewater, former residents of Richmond, was run over by a wagon loaded with hay this afternoon and died from the effects of his injuries a few minutes later. The boy was returning from school and tried to climb on the wagon which Mr. Grant was driving to town. In getting on, he lost his balance and fell over backward and the wheels passed over his body. He was carried into a house nearby and his parents and a physician were summoned, but death was almost instantaneous.

President Taft Asks That the Missing
Episode Be Entirely Forgotten.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, D. C., April 16.—President Taft this afternoon replied to the letter of apology sent him yesterday by the suffragists. The president declared that he regretted the "hissing" incident to his speech but because of any personal feeling, but because it was being used in an unfair way to embarrass the leaders of the suffragists' movement. He entered into no hard feelings against any member and asked that the whole matter be forgotten as soon as possible.

GAMES BEGIN IN SOUTH AND WEST

Texas League Opened Its Season Today—Central California Players
Play Ball Tomorrow.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Houston, Texas, April 16.—The Texas baseball league, one of the strongest and most flourishing of the class "C" organizations, began the season of 1910 today under conditions that give promise of the most successful year in its history. Since the close of last season the weaker teams of the circuit have been strengthened and there is not a manager in the entire league who does not believe his club has a chance for the pennant.

In the initial games today Fort Worth played at Galveston, Dallas at Waco, Shreveport at San Antonio, and Oklahoma City at Houston. The season will close Labor Day.

D. A. R. CONGRESS IN WASHINGTON MONDAY

Could-Drexel Wedding in New York
On Tuesday—Opening Of Drus-
sels Exposition Scheduled For Coming Week.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, D. C., April 16.—Interest in political circles will center in the special election in the Thirty-second congressional district of New York to choose a successor to the late Representative Perkins. It will be the third election of a member of congress since the passage of the Payne-Adair bill law. In February the Democrats had a larger majority than usual in electing a candidate to succeed the late D. A. D. Arnold of Missouri, and last month for the first time they carried the Fourteenth Massachusetts district. If they are successful in the New York election the Democrats will probably feel much encouraged in their hopes to control the next Congress. They have waged their campaign on the same leading issue as was fought out in the Fourteenth Massachusetts district, namely, the high cost of living due to the Payne-Adair tariff measure. George W. Aldrich and James S. Hays are the opposing candidates on the Republican and Democratic tickets.

President Taft will deliver an address of welcome at the opening of the national congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which will begin its sessions in Washington Monday morning in Continental Memorial Hall. Addresses will also be made by Thomas Nelson Page and John Barrett, chief of the International Bureau of American Republics. The session will last a week.

The most notable wedding of the season is to take place in New York Tuesday, when Miss Marjorie Gould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, will become the bride of Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., of Philadelphia. The ceremony will take place at St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal church and will be followed by a large reception at the Gould residence in Fifth avenue.

A New York event of quite a different character, but one which is certain to attract an equal amount of public attention, will be the trial of Albert W. Wolter, the alleged youthful desperado who is charged with the murder of Ruth Wheeler, the pretty Milwaukee-born stenographer whose dismembered and burned body was found recently in Wolter's apartment. Whether the young girl had gone in search of employment.

Concluding his visit in Vienna, former President Roosevelt will journey to India Post where he is due to arrive Monday. After a stay of two days in the Hungarian capital he will take the Oriental express for Paris. An entire week is to be spent in the French metropolis. In addition to the official functions already announced, visits to the Pantheon and other great French monuments are planned and there will be also, it is expected, automobile trips to many interesting points.

Other events of the week in the foreign field will be the opening of the Covent Garden season of grand opera in London, the beginning of a notable Shakespeare festival at Stratford-upon-Avon and the formal opening of the University and International Exposition in Brussels. The Brussels exposition, which is to continue through the entire summer, will be general in scope, and one of the features will be an international art salon.

OFFICIAL TEST OF TEE WARSHIP BRAKE

Device Invented by Canadian Will Be Tried Out by Battleship "Indiana" on Monday Next.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Philadelphia, April 16.—To stop a ten thousand ton battleship going at full speed within her own length is the problem which the navy department has set for the La Cote ship brake, the invention of a Canadian, which is to have an official test on the battleship "Indiana," off the Delaware Capes next Monday. The "Indiana" is scheduled to leave the League Island navy yard tomorrow with a party of naval experts on board.

The brake, which has been successfully worked on a 300-ton gunboat revenue cutter, but has never before been tried on a ship of large size, consist of two steel wires, 13 feet 6 inches high by 6 feet wide, fastened to the sides of the "Indiana" amidships, below the waterline. An officer on the bridge, by pressing a button, can set the machinery in motion, which will force the wires out at right angles with the ship, thus checking its headway. By throwing one wing out, it is asserted, the ship can be turned as if on a pivot.

There is much speculation in naval circles as to the outcome of the test, which, if successful, will mean much in naval evolution.

PIONEER ROCK CO. RESIDENT IS DEAD

James Spike, Passed Away in Edgerton Yesterday—Other News Of The Tobacco City.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Wis., April 16.—James Spike, one of the pioneer residents of Rock county, passed away at his home in this city yesterday. He was a native of England and came to Wisconsin with his parents when a mere child, settling first in Dane county. As he became of age he purchased a farm in the town of Porter which he conducted up to seven years ago, but two years is now owned and conducted by the only son James Spike. The deceased was twice married, his first wife dying six years ago. Three years ago he was again married to Mrs. Jane Dickinson, who together with the son James, survive him. He was upwards of 70 years of age and for several years has been breaking down gradually in health in consequence of old age. One year ago last fall he went to California to spend the winter for the benefit of his health. Returning one year ago the change of climate changed for the worse and he gradually grew worse and weaker. The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon and the remains will be laid at rest beside the body of his first wife in the Homeville cemetery. "Confidential Partners" will be the theme for Sunday morning at the Congregational church.

Harry Buckner is recovering slowly from an attack of typhoid fever.

Mrs. Bertha Vayotte is recovering from an attack of rheumatism with which she has been suffering for the past two weeks.

WOLTER TRIAL BEGINS MONDAY

SAXON YOUTH CHARGED WITH FIENDISH CRIME
MURDER OF RUTH WHEELER

Was Followed By Discovery Of Remains Of Partly Burned Body In Accused's New York Flat.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, April 16.—The district attorney's office has completed all preparations for beginning the murder trial of Albert Wolter, which is on the docket for next Monday. To be called before Judge W. Foster in Part V. of the Court of General Sessions. The defendant, a Saxon boy of eighteen years, is charged with having brutally murdered Ruth Wheeler, a handsome girl of fifteen years and with having dismembered and partly burned her body. The crime which was committed less than a month ago, was of an unusually brutal and fiendish nature and created considerable sensation at the time.

Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss, who has been at work almost constantly since the discovery of the crime, collecting evidence against Wolter, is confident of being able to convict the accused of the crime with which he is charged. He has in his possession what he considers a strong chain of circumstantial evidence, sufficient, he believes to prove the guilt of Wolter.

The first in the evidence to be submitted by the prosecution will be the admission of Wolter that he wrote a postal card to the Merchants' and Bankers' Business College, where Miss Wheeler had studied stenography, adding that a stenographer had sent to his home at No. 224 East Seventy-fifth street. The card which was handed to Miss Wheeler and which she probably had in her possession when she entered Wolter's apartment, has not been found, but the card was seen by several witnesses who particularly noted upon it the impression of a rubber stamp, identical with that of a stamp found in Wolter's possession. The fact that Wolter afterward denied having written to the college for a stenographer, is expected to count against him, when it is shown by the testimony of several witnesses that such a card actually existed and when Wolter's notary is produced in evidence, by which it is expected to show not only that Wolter had been in the habit of answering advertisements of stenographers applying for work, but that he had written to the Merchants' and Bankers' Business College and had seen and spoken to Miss Wheeler. In proof of the latter contention it will be pointed out that Miss Wheeler was known in the college and among her girl friends merely as Ruth Wheeler, as she never used her middle name, "Anna." The fact that Wolter had entered Miss Wheeler's name in his notebook as "Ruth Anna Wheeler" will be pointed out by the prosecution as a proof that Wolter must have spoken with Miss Wheeler.

Next it is proposed to show that Wolter's card was handed to Miss Wheeler and that she was seen to enter the Seventy-fifth street house soon after 9 A. M. March 23. The janitor of the building will testify that Miss Wheeler asked him for Wolter's flat and that she went upstairs after he had given her the proper direction. Nobody ever saw Miss Wheeler leave the house. It is expected to show that a man answering Wolter's description was seen placing two bundles upon the fire-escape of Wolter flat about 10 P. M. March 23. In one of the bundles was afterward found a charred human body, which was positively identified as that of Ruth Wheeler. The other bundle contained, among other things, a night shirt which Wolter acknowledged as his property. Another shirt which is expected to prove the fact that the umbrella which Ruth Wheeler carried on the morning when she went to Wolter's flat was found in the possession of Matt Miller with whom Wolter lived in the flat on Seventy-fifth street and with whom he moved to another flat in West One hundred and Fifth street after the police visited his rooms on Seventy-fifth street.

Mr. Moss will prove by the testimony of a sales girl that Wolter on the afternoon of March 23, between two and three o'clock, purchased a can of black paint and a brush in a certain store and that he afterwards painted the marble around the fireplace of his flat, presumably to cover the grime which had dripped on the marble when Miss Wheeler's body was burned. He will also establish the fact that Wolter had been wearing a shirt which had been worn by Miss Wheeler, her hatpins and mitts were found in the store and fireplace of Wolter's flat. Expert testimony will be introduced to prove that the grime under the paint of Wolter's fireplace was human fat.

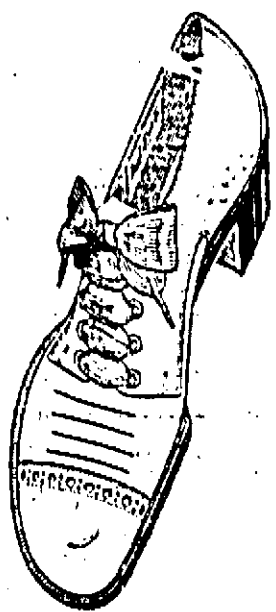

It is expected that the defense will make a general denial of Wolter's guilt will not doubt upon the identification of the body as that of Ruth Wheeler, will maintain that an identification of the body and of the hatpins, chain and shirtwaist was impossible under the circumstances. If everything else should fail, it is believed, the defense will rely upon a plea of insanity to save Wolter.

Foreign Meat in England.
Some English seem to think all meats coming in should be marked either "foreign" or "colonial" to show the buyer that he was not getting English meat. Every one of the chief joints would have to be stamped, and the exporter would have to do the stamping. Further, the butcher dealing in "foreign" as well as English meat must announce the fact on his shop front, so that his customers may know he deals in both foreign and English meat. Some of the farmers complain that much foreign meat is passed off as English to bring down their prices.

WATT MAY SECURE THE PROGRAM FOR JEFFRIES BATTLE

Former Janesville Alderman One of the Bidders For Privilege At Big Fourth of July Fight.
When the big game takes place the first round of the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight on July Fourth, it is possible that it there are any Janesville visitors at the ring side they will be holding in their hands a program of the events which are taking place which will have been published by William W. Watt, former alderman from the third Ward in Janesville and at present a prosperous real estate and insurance man of Reno, Nevada. In a recent letter to a friend in the city Mr. Watt writes that he has every hope of securing the program privilege and enclosed the following clipping from the Nevada State Journal of Reno relative to his conversation with Tex Rickard, the promoter who has the big fight in charge.
"Tex Rickard, the battle promoter who had the nerve to put an $105,000 in cash in the order to pull off the Jeffries-Johnson affair on July the fourth, was about Reno yesterday in his $3,000 automobile. Tex was a real busy man during the day, and among his numerous callers was William W. Watt, who is a live wire here in Reno in the real estate business. At one time Mr. Watt was engaged in the newspaper business in the east and with this experience back of him he tackled Rickard yesterday regarding the securing of the official souvenir privilege at the coming fight to be held in "Prizeco, Tex said:
"We are now ready to receive bids for this souvenir privilege, but I want to tell you that it will take some cash. One bid that I know of is already in at a $1000 figure. We have received many letters from advertising firms in the old country who are willing to pay as high as $500 a page on this program. If you have this privilege, Watt, you need have no worry over the amount of live advertising that you will be able to secure both in this country and Europe."

Newspapers and the People.

Whatever we may say of the modern press on its less commendable side, we are bound to admit that newspapers, like governments, fairly reflect the people they serve, writes Francis L. Loupp in the Atlantic. Charles Dudley Warner once went as far as to say, that no matter how objectionable the character of a paper may be, it is always a trifle better than the patrons on which it relies for its support. I suspect that Mr. Warner's comparison rested on the greater frankness of the bad paper, which, by very virtue of its mode of appeal, is bound to make a brave parade of its worst qualities; whereas the reader who is loudest in proclaiming its public his repugnance for horrors, and his detestation of scandals, and in private he buying the sheet which peddles both most shamelessly.

Tobacco in the Orient.

Use of tobacco is universal in the Orient, and the word cheroot and its use come from Madras. The first cheroot seen by Columbus were wrapped with corn shucks. Some Himalaya tribes take the leaf of the palusana and, with a cunning twist of the wrist, make the bowl and long, narrow stem of a pipe in the most perfect way.

Mrs. Isabelle Ousgard of Beloit spent Wednesday evening in this village.

Mrs. Ed. Stabler and Miss Ora Knutson of Broadhead spent Thursday night with Mrs. Sornio.

Mr. and Mrs. John Heyerdahl were Janesville callers Friday.

Miss Velma Britten returned to her home in Plattville Thursday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Ousgard, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ousgard, and Henry Ousgard of Stockholm attended their parents' 40th wedding anniversary Wednesday evening.

Mrs. G. O. Roen was a Janesville shopper Wednesday.

Mrs. O. A. Peterson spent Thursday afternoon in Janesville.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Taylor were Janesville callers Friday.

Mrs. O. J. Kynde and Mrs. E. A. Damer spent Friday at Janesville.

Messrs. O. A. Peterson, A. P. Gundersen, and Fred Cole spent Friday in Rockford.

Miss Jessie Nolly of Beloit spent Sunday at home.

Miss Len Hetzer of Janesville spent Sunday with her parents.

On Wednesday evening, April 12, a large number of relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Ousgard in honor of their forthright wedding anniversary. They were presented with a purse. All report a very fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Knudson left Friday evening for Broadhead. They expect to make their future home near Broadhead.

FEDERAL RULE IS BEING URGED

MORGAN'S PARTNER ADVOCATES NATIONAL CONTROL OF BIG CORPORATIONS.

FAVORS FORCED PUBLICITY

George W. Perkins, Banker, Addresses Harvard Students—Sees Three Methods Including Government Ownership and Socialism.

Boston, April 16.—Addressing the students of the graduate school of business administration of Harvard university, Mr. George W. Perkins, associated with J. Pierpont Morgan in the banking business, said he was an advocate of governmental control of large corporation and compulsory publicity as a cure for existing evils.

Either a rational understanding of the vast corporation with tentacles stretching to all corners of the country must be reached or government ownership and socialism will supplant the present competitive system, in the opinion of Mr. Perkins.

Condensing His Message, The message which he bore to the students of Harvard was condensed for them to a few telling epigrams:

Giant corporations would be not a menace, but a great public benefit, if managed under laws that compelled proper publicity and punished officers for improper methods.

The attempt by humans to make laws that will nullify conditions which have come about through the conquest of the mysteries of nature will never succeed. One might just as well attempt to legislate against the lightning.

The officers of great corporations should realize that such concerns are more truly public institutions than private property.

Let American business enterprises grow and expand and embrace the earth if they can, provided only that their methods shall at all times be fair, honest and aboveboard.

In summing up the points upon which he had touched in his paper, Mr. Perkins gave his own view of the possible developments of the future.

Three Methods for Future.

"It seems to me," he said, "that the future has its choice of three methods: First, co-operation through the medium of corporations with federal regulation and control; second, government ownership and management; third, socialism."

"Under the method of large corporations regulated and supervised by federal authority, and widely distributed ownership and with labor incorporated in the business you have all the safeguards and advantages that the most ardent advocate of government ownership could desire. In broadly distributed ownership among the public and labor, you distribute profits to the people and retain for the benefit of the business that one great factor which has done so much for American industry—namely, individual initiative. You leave to men the goal of achievement; you leave their ambition undampened."

SOMETHING TO INVEST

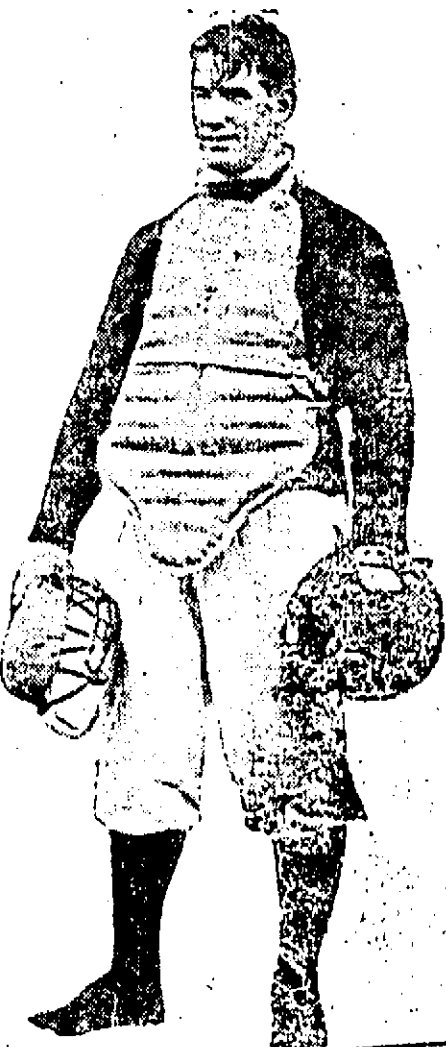

"Yes, said the thoughtful thinker, 'I have an idea for an invention that would make all other get-rich-quick schemes look like a dollar minus 70 cents—if I could only perfect it.'"

"What's the idea?" queried the party of the same part.

"A folding horse that would fit under the seat of an automobile, for use in emergencies," answered the t. t.

ROGER BRESNAHAN
MGR ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS NATIONALS.
Roger Bresnahan.

In St. Louis the Cardinals, the National league team, has a large following, not from the showing they have made during the past few years, but simply because the Missonians are staunch for the old league and its performers. Standing in his second year as manager is Roger Bresnahan, one of the greatest coaches in the business and formerly the manager of the Giants. There is no denying that Bresnahan's going hurt the Giants. He managed to pull St. Louis club somewhat out of the mire last season, some real flashes of form being shown at times, although the final step was far toward the bottom of the ladder.

St. Louis was one of the charter members of the National league, but the pennant of the National has never floated in that town. There isn't a chance on earth that it's going to go either. But there have been some famous teams in St. Louis and some famous characters connected with the game, notably Chris Von der Ahe, one of the most picturesque figures the game has ever known. He was president of the club from 1892-97. In recent years the Cardinals have shown very poorly. The easiest way to find out where the Cardinals were in the standing was to start at the tail end of the percentage column. Bresnahan experimented liberally last fall in an effort to grab off someone that could deliver, and has pulled off some trades during the winter.

The one big star of Bresnahan's outfit is Ed Konetchy. Here is a first sacker any big league club in the country would be glad to grab off. At second Miller Huggins, secured from Cincinnati, has the inside chance, with Hulawit at short and Barbeau at

HOW THE WORLD HAS MOVED

Less Than a Century Ago Railroads and the Telegraph Were Deemed Impossible.

Alexander Wells, an old citizen of Wellesville, O., has a copy of an interesting and novel document issued by the school board of the town of Lancaster, O., in 1828. The question of steam railroads was in its infancy at that time and a club of young men had been formed for the purpose of discussing the points at issue. They discussed the use of the schoolhouse for purposes of debate. This was looked upon by the members of the board as an innovation bordering upon sacrilege, as indicated, which is the document in the possession of Mr. Wells. It reads as follows:

"You are welcome to the use of the schoolhouse to debate all proper questions in, but such things as railroads and telegraphs are impossibilities and rank infidelity. There is nothing in the Word of God about them. If God had designed that his intelligent creatures should travel at the frightful speed of 15 miles an hour, by steam, he would clearly have foretold it through his holy prophets. It is a device of Satan to lead immortal souls down to hell."

Such sentiments possibly reflected the feeling, to some extent, in the days of 65 years ago, but they sound strange at the present time, when the "Word of Satan" is daily carrying people over the land at the rate of 60 or 70 miles an hour. The world has progressed somewhat since 1828.

SEX EVEN IN BREAD MOLDS

Scientific Discovery That Will Tend to Astonish the Unthinking Layman.

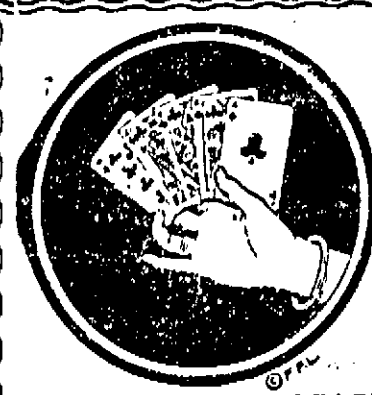

Among the many extraordinary theories introduced by recent microscopic studies is that of sex in bread molds. After years of patient research it is announced that a distinguished scientist has found that these minute fungi, the lowest order of plant life, possess the characteristics of plants of the highest type, and have the power of reproducing their kind from two distinct and different races. In addition to giving new life from one. The precise meaning and value to organic evolution of the fact that in such low forms of life as the common mold male and female should be as sharply differentiated as in human beings are far from settled, but the discovery, if it be a discovery, is a most important contribution to the fascinating pursuit of the unknown in nature. Some of the microscopic slides show, it is claimed, groups of fungi which form the product of mated bread molds once separated by thousands of miles. To the unscientific eye they appear as pretty miniature forest jungles.

Merchant-Tailor Clothes Look Better—They Always Have—They Always Will

That elusive something called style cannot be made in a factory. Good tailoring—the draping and cutting and modeling of cloth—is an art, nothing less.

Every good merchant tailor believes this with all his soul. He knows it from his own years of experience, and patience and toil as a craftsman.

He knows that merely to fit is but a small part of a good tailor's art.

The right sort of clothes—the clothes you want—appeal as much through fitness as through fit.

Through an air of distinction and elegance, a good tailor can express the best there is in you. He can make your clothes bespeak class. He can preserve individuality. He can give personality a chance.

You want such clothes and they can be had in only one way. They must be cut and made expressly for you, from faultless fabrics, by that artist of merchants—a merchant tailor.

These are tailoring facts. In neglecting them you wrong Opportunity. Now as to Fabrics—Our woolsens are from the best and most reliable mills of America, England, Scotland and Ireland.

OUR PRICES are reasonable and we extend a hearty invitation to call and see for your self. For classy clothes.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The New York Central railroad narrowly averted a strike this week through the aid of the labor commission which will attempt to settle grievances by arbitration. The conductors running between New York and Buffalo, a distance of 450 miles, are paid at the rate of two cents per mile. They make eight round trips per month, and earn $144.

The pay for which they are now contending means an advance of fifty per cent and this involves tramping over the entire system, affecting 8,000 men. The company offered to compromise, but to no purpose, and the matter now rests with the commission.

This is simply one of many instances with which the railroad world is at present contending, and while the companies are disposed to be liberal, they are so hampered by legislative control, that the question of increased expenses is very perplexing.

So much has been said about the high cost of living that there is a feeling of unrest all through the manufacturing districts of the east and strikes are of daily occurrence.

A peculiar boycott is going on just now in New York City in the Jewish quarters which, by the way, are prominent quarters in this great metropolis, for the Jews monopolize the business to a large extent.

During Passover week, chuck meat, known as "Kosher," is in great demand and two thousand butcher shops supply the tenement district with this toothsome luxury. This year prices advanced and the meat formerly sold at thirteen cents was put up to eighteen cents.

It was the straw which broke the camel's back, and so the Jews, men, women and children, organized a boycott, and 100,000 of them turned out en masse to put the butchers out of business.

The man who refused to close his shop had his window smashed, and finally six hundred of these persecuted tradesmen called on the packers for relief. They were told that the Passover had nothing to do with the price of meat and advised to engage in some other business until the war was over.

The ferry boats which run from Fort George at the lower end of Station Island across the bay five miles to Manhattan, land at South ferry, near the battery at Castle Garden, and here a large percentage of our new citizens enter the gateway to America.

Out in the bay yesterday a liner with one thousand Italians on board was anchored, awaiting inspection. Today they have been swallowed up in the great city to become a part of the body politic. Plenty of missionary work without going to Rome to find it.

A wealthy young Scotchman with his family and a number of friends, enroute for Colorado to find relief for consumption, is held up at Ellis Island, and will doubtless be sent back, for while the Italian is welcome, the laws concerning consumption are very strict, as the city is already caring for 10,000 cases.

The tide of humanity which ebbs and flows with monotonous regularity is a revelation to the westerner who constantly wonders where all these people come from and how they live. The city of Brooklyn, called the bedroom of New York, pours into the city 500,000 workers every morning. The Hudson tunnel, known as the tube, recently opened, connects Jersey City with Manhattan, and last month 4,000,000 people used this new thoroughfare, with no perceptible loss to the ferries which cross every ten minutes.

The subways are thronged from morning until midnight for they have no rival in rapid transit. The terminal station of the Pennsylvania railroad in New York and Brooklyn will soon be opened and the tunnels under both the Hudson and East rivers are completed, as well as the subway under Manhattan Island. This means an outlay of $150,000,000, but it enables the company to haul its trains in New York and Brooklyn and connect with the Long Island railroad, which is a part of the great system. Yet some people wonder why railroads issue bonds and what they do with their money.

The loop district of Chicago is duplicated many times in New York yet there is little congestion and the crowds are handled without confusion. The streets of the city are as clean as the streets of Washington, and while there is plenty of graft, the people have something to show for it.

The average New Yorker is a gentleman of the old school type. Gentle, approachable, and unlike the Bostonian, he does not demand a pedestal or an introduction, but he is a New Yorker for all that, and is both indifferent and densely ignorant concerning the west.

This is due to a measure to the New York press, which seldom publishes any news west of Buffalo. Most of the people have heard of Chicago, but few of them have ever seen the city, while the country west of the Mississippi is supposed to be a howling wilderness.

Of course these conditions are more or less natural for the average eastern man has nothing to call him west, while the westerner is usually a descendant from some eastern state and so keeps in touch with that part of the country.

The west knows all about Aldrich and Payne, Lodge and Hale, and a score of eastern statesmen, while aside from "Uncle Joe" Cannon and Bryan the east has yet to discover that the west has any statesmen.

The east is a busy hive of manufacturing industry, centered in the nation's great metropolis, a city without a rival in many respects. The business interests are industrial and the men who represent them in congress are expected to be loyal.

It is unfortunate for the nation, and especially for the republican party, that the men of the east are not in closer touch with the men of the west.

The 6,000,000 farmers who poured into the peoples' treasury last year $3,000,000,000 in products, represent the basis of the nation's prosperity. One year of failure would mean disaster to the east, and enforced idleness, indifference, either through ignorance or carelessness to the interests of this important constituency is a short-sighted policy.

The east and the west should cultivate the most friendly relations and work together for the common good. There are no special interests, and no dividing lines in a country where every man is a monarch, and where the greatest good to the greatest number is the watchword of progress.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

By WALT MASON.

(Copyright, 1909, by George Mathew Adams.)

A week has skeddaddled, wherever weeks go; it's doubtful been padded across Styx's flow. We're grayer and older and wearier now; our blood's running colder; now I'll seem the brow, Old Father Time's tearing; by hustling he thrives; each passing week's parting a slice from our lives. And some who were jolly a short week ago, have become melancholy and heartache and woe; and some vacant places are now in the room; and some tear-wet faces are heavy with gloom. And some who were keeping sad vigils with sighs, have driven the weeping and woe from their eyes. A week is so little, in ages sublime! A splinter we whittle from forests of time! A drop in the ocean, a speck in the skies—not worth the commotion we make when it flows! And yet it embraces both gladness and tears, and fastens its traces on all coming years. So may it be granted to people to say, when this week is planted: "Twas not thrown away! We've toiled and we've striven as well as we could, to reach out for heaven and all that is good!"

Every day there is something doing in real estate on the West Ad page. Keep in touch with it daily.

Prison Conditions Deterred.

One effective result of the suffragette invasion of Holloway jail in England and the constant complaints of the "votes for women" prisoners as to their treatment there, is a new scheme which has just been framed by the home office. In future women prisoners between the ages of 16 and 23 will be separated from hardened criminals and will receive lessons in sewing and dressmaking. A committee of ladies will also assist them to obtain situations when their sentences have expired.

Dog Gave Warning of Death.

On the morning of October 19, one of my dogs set up a most mournful howl, and I got out of bed and wrote on the wall, "Some one is dead," and the following day related my experience to the salt officer stationed here and recorded it on his chronicle. My sister died at 4:45 a. m. on the morning of October 19, at Wimbledon, exactly at the time that the dog gave the significant warning.—Letter in Madras Mail.

DO not make the mistake of buying a piano of poor tone quality for the children's use.

A knowledge of tone values can be obtained only by having an instrument of fine musical qualities.

It is better, therefore, to pay the price for a good piano than to select one of inferior merit.

We have ready for your inspection a collection of instruments which include all reliable grades at prices ranging from $200 to $500.

You will find these pianos sweet and resonant in tone and attractive in design.

The prices simply represent the worth of the instrument.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE CRY OF THE CHILD.

The other day I visited a large orphan asylum;

The spectacle of so many little waifs, orphaned babies, would make any heart sad. Not one of these poor little ones has a mother to bind up its little hurts and kiss the place "to make it well" or to tuck it in bed and listen to the lulling prayer.

Motherless!

There is no other word in the language full of so much sorrow.

But, on the whole, I was glad for my visit. Here was the cry of the motherless being heard and answered in my day.

Ever read the story of Michelangelo and the street urchin?

Everybody in his day knew the great, kind hearted artist. And so on one occasion a little street wail confronted Michelangelo with a pencil and a piece of paper and besought the artist to make a picture.

Michelangelo loved children, and he sat down there on the curbstone and made a picture for the boy. Would the sketch had been preserved!

Now, you would predict that an appeal from a child would touch the heart of a big man like the great painter.

But—

In Michelangelo's day there were no orphan asylums worthy of the name. In his day parents might sell their children as bond slaves, and often did so, and the child slavery of that time is full of cruelty and sometimes death. Let me put this picture over against that of Michelangelo and the boy!

Theodore Roosevelt stood on the real platform shaking hands with a great crowd of people. Looking beyond the crowd, he saw on its outskirts a forlorn little figure of a girl who looked timidly and hopefully toward him. Theodore Roosevelt was president of the United States, but—

Pushing aside the throng, he jumped down, made his way to the little maid and, after shaking her hand, took his buttonhole from his coat and gave it to the little one.

There is the difference between the age of Michelangelo and the age of Theodore Roosevelt.

Here and there in the former days a man might sometimes stoop to please a boy; in our day philanthropy pushes aside the elders to make his way to the forlorn little ones.

Houses and Homes.

There have been, and there are today in the various lands of the earth, many people who have no houses, and nothing that you could call furniture, even of the antique variety. But there can be no doubt that they are far happier than many who are comfortably housed in mansions which contain everything that money can buy.—Uncle Remus' Magazine.

Talk Straight.
Clear thinkers, pleasant writers, who can condense their thoughts, are so rare that they are in great demand. Everything is covered up with words, words, words! The whole tendency of modern life is toward diffusion. Rhetorical condensation is becoming a lost art.—Success.

Persian Etiquette.
With the Persian one can not discuss his wife in a grave breach of etiquette. "The most you can do is to ask about 'mother of his son.' If he has only daughters he does not mention them; they are a misfortune to be suffered in silence.—London Globe.

DON'T rest content in the matter of cigars until you have smoked at east lone cigar from our case.

Our pet hobby is to be able to hand over our counters just what every man likes best in smoke. The result is that you can get what you want at this store, either one at a time or in large quantities, and as they should be—moist, fresh and fragrant.

If you can crowd more excellence in the smoking line into cigars than we do, by keeping our cigars always in perfect smoking condition, tell us. We'll beat it if we can—we haven't learned how to date.

Some Reasons Why You Should Use HELMS SEEDS

1—Forty-three years in the seed business in Janesville. We know by experience what is best suited to our conditions.

2—We buy all our seeds direct from the growers. From specialists in each line. Wherever we can get the best. Some of our seeds we get from California and some we import from France.

3—We test all our seeds for vitality. If any lot of seed does not show a good percentage of germination it is destroyed. We keep a record of all tests and will gladly show these at any time to anyone interested.

4—We handle bulk seeds only. Every purchase, if only for a few cents, is carefully weighed. No uncertain packages here. It means more work for us but it is the only fair method of selling seeds.

5—Samples of all our field seeds, such as timothy, clover etc. are sent to the University Experiment Station at Madison and tested for purity and freedom for foreign matter. Every bag of seed that leaves our store has a label giving the results of the tests, as follows: Purity, Freedom from Foreign Matter Germination.

6—By placing our contracts with the growers for their crops before planting time, we are able to secure the lowest prices consistent with the highest quality.

7—By buying from responsible growers only, we know that our seeds are fresh and true to name. The dealer who buys from a jobber or wholesaler has no means of knowing that his seeds are of the crop of 1909, or '08, or '07. He does not even know where his seeds are grown. In fact he knows nothing about the seeds he offers except their price.

8—A square deal. We make no statements in our catalog or on our advertisements that are not absolutely true. Printers ink is cheap but not when the advertised cannot make good. Forty-three years we have made good.

9—Our prices are the lowest consistent with the high quality that we always maintain. We do not sell "cheap" seeds.

ROOSEVELT CALLS REPORTS "FAKE"

Former President and Son Reach Austrian Capital—Greeted by Diplomats and Put in a Busy Day—Shown Much Honor.

Vienna, April 16.—The statement contained in the Paris Herald that he had consented to be a candidate for the presidency again was branded as a "fake" by Col. Theodore Roosevelt here. The traveler was indignant when he learned that such a report had been printed.

The colonel said the story was a pure fake, that neither he nor Gifford Pinchot had said anything that could possibly warrant such a statement.

In this connection Roosevelt said his meeting with Pinchot should not be interpreted as a desire to hear only one side of the conservation controversy. "I want to hear all sides on all questions," the colonel said, "and I shall be glad to see anyone who can enlighten me on political conditions. I am sorry that Senator Root could not come to Europe."

In concluding his remarks regarding the Paris Herald, the colonel said: "As this is the third false statement in the Herald of a similar character, I must absolutely decline to see the representative of that paper."

Visit Historic Places.

This, the second day of Colonel Roosevelt's stay in the Austrian capital, has been full of interest to the famous American. Early in the morning he and his party were taken in automobiles to see Count Wilczek's castle, Kremsmünster, one of the most noted of eleventh century castles in Europe. On his return Mr. Roosevelt was entertained at luncheon by Ambassador Koron, the other guests being Foreign Minister von Aehrenthal, Baron Hohenhausen von Hengenberg, Austrian ambassador at Washington, and the baroness; Henry White, former American ambassador to France; American Consul General Charles Denby and the staff of the embassy.

At Sporting Exhibition.

The afternoon was devoted to the international sporting exhibition, to which Colonel Roosevelt was escorted by Prince Furstenberg, president of the exhibition company. This evening the colonel will be a guest at a court dinner at the Schoenbrunn palace, and later, at a grand soiree to be given by Margrave von Pallavicini at his palace in Josephs-Platz, he will meet all the most distinguished members of Vienna society.

Received Like a King.

As a special mark of his personal esteem the aged emperor-king, Franz Josef, received Col. Roosevelt in his private apartments at the imposing Hofburg palace instead of in the regular audience chamber. The monarch, who was attired in an imperial uniform, was extremely gracious to the American ex-president and kept him in conversation for 35 minutes. The colonel afterward declined to reveal the slightest detail of the conversation.

Emperor Franz Josef intended personally to return Colonel Roosevelt's call on his way out to the Schoenbrunn castle, where the monarch usually passes the night, and was only deterred from so doing by a sudden storm. Therefore he was compelled to send his old dog camp. Such an honor as a return visit from the emperor is extended only to reigning sovereigns.

The Ticklemouse

—and his Sleepyland Adventures

By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

The Water Baby

PART I.—Candy Cave.

THE twins were caught napping last night. Their father was going out for a moonlight automobile ride, and was looking everywhere for his auto-goggles. But though he searched the garage through and through, he could not find either pair. "Of course, I don't suppose we really need them after dark," he said to their mother, "but I get so in the habit of wearing them when I'm out in the machine, I'd be sure to miss them all the evening if we went off without them. Where in the world can they be?"

He laughed when he looked into the nursery at last and found Davy and Dorfy asleep, each with a pair of the missing goggles clutched tightly in a chubby little hand. They were so sound asleep, he took the goggles away without rousing a single drowsy sigh from either twin.

And how surprised Davy and Dorfy were, when the Ticklemouse waked them at midnight. "Why, our goggles are gone!" they cried—softly, lest father and mother should hear.

The Ticklemouse smiled at their little plan and the way it had gone away. "We shan't need them tonight, my dears," he squeaked, tugging at something on the floor. "But you might lend a hand with this. We must hustle!"

He was hauling Davy's new sailboat out from a box of toys, hurrying to get it through the window before it should swell up too big to handle. For it was growing fast, almost as fast as Mrs. Noah's houseboat had done a few nights before.

The twins pushed and tugged with all their might at the "Merry Mouse," which was the name the twins had painted across her clipper-built bow—and in a trice she was poised on the windmill. At a nod from the Ticklemouse they sprang aboard, and before they knew what had happened they saw the moonlit sea beneath them. The good ship struck the waves with a splash that sent the salt spray high in air—and bowed merrily over the waves.

The Ticklemouse, brave and natty in a jolly Jack Tar's suit and shiny low slippers with silver buckles, stood at the helm while Davy hung out the ship's

$5,000,000 GRAFT TO CAUSE ARRESTS

HARAHAN AND DETECTIVE BURNS CONFER—ACTION IS DECIDED UPON.

SHADOW FLEEING OFFICIALS

Railroad President Admits All Suspected Men in Big Graft Operations Are His Own Appointments—Fish Is Not Involved.

Chicago, April 16.—President Harahan and W. J. Burns, head of the detective agency conducting the investigation into the alleged $5,000,000 graft operation on the Illinois Central railroad, had an all-day conference behind closed doors and as a result the arrest of a number of former and present officials of that road is expected soon.

While both President Harahan and Detective Burns refused to admit what action was to be taken it is understood that the verbal report made by the investigation started the president into determining on immediate action.

Accused Officials Flee City.

This decision was hastened, it is thought, by the rumor that several of the officials who are under surveillance have slipped quietly out of the city. It is understood, however, that the three officials who have attempted to escape arrest and criminal proceedings are being shadowed and President Harahan is in hourly receipt of telegrams showing their whereabouts. When the time comes a telegram will cause their arrest.

Looking pale and haggard from his all-day session with the detective, President Harahan wearily listened while reporters sought to get some news from him.

"Is it true that you have decided on arrests, to be followed by criminal action?" was asked.

"I can't answer that," replied Mr. Harahan.

"Are most of the suspected officials appointees of former President Fish and is this whole affair merely a re-naming of the Fish-Harahan fight?"

All Harahan Appointees.

"No, sir," replied Mr. Harahan delicately. "So far as I know Mr. Fish has nothing whatever to do with it. Neither is there any truth in the statement that all the men implicated were hold-overs appointed by Mr. Fish. Every one of them was appointed by me."

John G. Shedd, a director of the Illinois Central, confirmed President Harahan's denial of the resurrection of the Fish-Harahan feud.

THREE HUNDRED MEN ARE SLAIN

Estrada Is Reported to Have Driven the Madriz Army Back.

Bluefields, April 16.—Three hundred soldiers fell in battle between the Madriz and Estrada forces between Managua and Acayapa, according to couriers who arrived here. The couriers declare that the government casualties exceed those of the insurgents. The offensive has been assumed by Estrada's army, according to the story that they bring, while the Madriz army has withdrawn to a supporting line beyond Acayapa. Americans sent here from New Orleans are said to have infused new life into the insurgent army, and Estrada believes he will be able to lead a successful expedition against the capital of Madriz.

RELIABLE BICYCLES

WITH the many good reasons for riding a bicycle, is it any wonder the wheel is again back to its old time popularity? Three reasons why you should own a bicycle:

- First—Our streets and roads make wheeling a pleasure.
- Second—Cycling is considered by physicians to be one of the most healthful exercises.
- Third—The bicycle affords the cheapest transportation, bringing the expense of owning one within the reach of all.

Wherever bicycles are ridden there will be found the following nameplates:

New 1910 Models

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY received a gift the other day of $350,000. That amount wasn't so very unusual, I suppose, but the condition under which the gift was given was rather exceptional. For the donor of this large gift insisted upon remaining entirely unknown. Several other colleges and charities lately have also received money but none the less respectable donations under the same conditions. It looks rather like an epidemic of anonymous giving.

And I hope the epidemic will become chronic. For there are few people for whom I have a more thorough admiration than those who, atop the charity to do a good deed, have also the finesse to want to keep it hid.

I never hear of an anonymous gift without thrilling with admiration to think that, somewhere in the obscurity behind it, is a man or woman fine enough to be able to absolutely do without praise or gratitude.

Charity is a beautiful thing.

Quite too beautiful to be tainted by my unworthy motive.

And isn't the man who gives openly and receives the gratitude of his beneficiaries and the approval of his fellowmen, just a bit too apt to let those things make up some part of his motive for giving?

Is that making too cynical a statement?

I wonder.

But apply the test to yourself.

Doesn't the thought of the approval of your friends and the gratitude you will receive from those you benefit, ever influence your giving the least bit?

Not at all?

Think a bit, brother.

If that is true why did you feel a twinge of disappointment when you found that the sums given towards the minister's Christmas present, of which your contribution was head and shoulders above the rest, were not to be made public, or communicated to the minister at all?

You were doing just as much for the minister. Whence that twinge of disappointment, then, if the congregation's approval and the minister's gratitude had absolutely no share in helping to extract that crisp, pinky, yellow ten dollar bill from your bill folder?

I suppose some people will say that this is a needlessly harping discussion, and that the charity for the college or the individual who receives a gift anonymously, is not a whit the better off because of that anonymity.

Granted.

But I think the donor is.

For no matter how generous or kind a deed you do, a better still awaits you—

"Which is, to keep that hid."

THE GARDEN OF LIFE.

By MARY RUSSELL.

Do you remember your grandmother's garden? And what an enchanted place it was to the wondering eyes of a child?

My grandmother was almost a wizard in her success. She touched nothing, it seemed, that did not thrive.

The roses and lilacs bloomed for her. She sent that came to her.

In the garden at the right and left of her, she became a glory of blossoms.

For her friends and her friends' friends, she was "lucky" and "lucky."

One day I asked her how it came about that she never failed to attain results. She looked at me keenly and said:

"Give my garden constant care—that is all. I never trust to luck. There is no such thing. I water and tend and trim the plants. I get the best seed and plants I can buy and give them the best care of which I am capable and so I always have a fine garden. Don't you think for one moment that you can have a garden like it without doing it, care every day. Some people start well, but they forget, and the day they forget is the day when things go wrong, and a sick plant is harder to cure than a sick person. Remember that!"

I have never forgotten that talk. I was a child and it has been an influence on my life.

The world is just a garden. We are all gardeners and plants. Back of us is the same divine principle to which the flower owes its existence. The self same power that brought us here brought them. What then of our work?

The child is the tender budding plant. How do we train it. We allow it to be warped by selfishness—to be starved for sympathy—and to be clouded by our moods. We allow it to grow carelessly and untrained of the rights of its neighbors.

We forget on some days and overwork on others. Too much training, at long intervals, is as bad as no training.

Every day is the only way. Every hour is better. Never let your child forget it is to take its place in the world. If it were to live for you alone in a sheltered nook you might neglect the higher and better thoughts. You could forgive selfishness. You could even forget ingratitude and thoughtlessness. But the child must live among others of its kind. Are you fitting it to take its place?

The child that is selfish in the home will grow into selfishness. The child that is careless will become more careless as time goes on. Now is the hour of your work. Do not neglect the day when blossoms and unsightly—the result of selfishness and thoughtlessness—will grow into selfishness. The child that is careless will become more careless as time goes on. Now is the hour of your work. Do not neglect the day when blossoms and unsightly—the result of selfishness and thoughtlessness—will grow into selfishness.

And the saddest thought of all is that the child, unlike the plant, thinks, and will think reproachfully of you as a careless, imprudent gardener, who has robbed him of his birthright.

Weep and you weep alone. Take A-I-C. You and the world laughs with you. 26c.

Art in an Elevator.

"I just love to see art extending its influence to the masses," remarked the cynical young man. "There's that elevator man in the building I just left. He wears a gray tuxedo and his cap has a straight black leather visor. Now, there is an art gallery on the top floor of the building, and he has heard so much, probably, about the harmony of colors that he has allowed the dust to gather on the visor of his cap just to have it harmonize with the rest of his clothes."

A NEW ANTISEPTIC.

Germs enter the human body through the mouth or throat and through the skin whenever there is a cut or scratch. A little care in the beginning will prevent almost every case of blood poison, diphtheria, scarlet fever, tonsillitis, and other germ diseases if people would only remember to make the mouth, throat, or every scratch or wound antiseptic at once with Thym Ozone, the new antiseptic which is a new germ killer but not a poison to the healthy flesh.

Thym Ozone is composed of Oxygen, Thymol, Wintergreen, Eucalyptus and other strong, but not poisonous antiseptics. It acts at once, purifies every wound, heals canker sores, ringworm, eruptions of the skin, cleans the mouth and nasal passages of germs, boils and ulcers are made clean in a few hours. Thym Ozone reduced with glycerine and warm water is the best remedy for Nasal catarrh. Its healing, soothing and antiseptic effect is noticed at once. Every family should have a bottle in the house to apply to any wound. Don't take chances of getting blood poison. Thym Ozone is sold only by the Baker Drug Co., Milwaukee and River streets, at 25c per bottle.

THE TAILORED HOUSE.

Four excellent models are here shown for general wear.

A neat design with clusters of tucks as the only departure from plainness offers inducements to the woman of simple taste.

More elaborate is the embroidered blouse with tucked shoulders, buttoned and embellished at the side with square tabs.

The third model, fashioned of all-over tuck material is greatly enhanced by a colored embroidered band concealing the buttons in front. Hair line tucks at the wrist combine the fitness of sleeve in the cuff.

Another simple and attractive skirtwaist has the tucked shoulder with embroidered scallops edging the opening in front. Tufted cuffs of sleeve are scalloped to match the trimming of this charming blouse.

Still I would not answer. "Come!"

"And he asks me to come to him so that he may decide—"

"This is a fine one. 'No man decides for John Calhoun, madam,' I said. 'You may advance facts, but he will decide.' Still she went on.

"And Texas not annexed is a menace. Without her, you hearthen people would not present a solid front, would you?"

"Madam has had much to do with affairs of state," I said.

"She went on as though I had not spoken."

"And if you were divided in your southern section, England would have all the greater chance. England, you know, says she wishes slavery abolished. She says that—"

"England says many things!" I ventured.

"The hypocrite of the nation!" I flushed at this singular woman at me suddenly. "As though diplomacy need be hypocritical! Thus, to-night Sir Richard of England forgets his place, his protestations. He does not even know that Mexico has forgotten its duty also. Sir, you were not at our little ball, so you could not see that very fat Sir Richard paying his bored devotions to Donna Lucretia! So I am left alone, and would be bored, but for you. In return—a slight jest on Sir Richard to-night—I will teach him that no fat gentleman should pay even bored attention to a lady who soon will be fat, when his obvious duty should call him otherwise! But! 'tis as though I myself were fat; which is not true."

"You go too deep for me, madam," I said. "I am but a simple messenger."

"At the same time, I saw how admirably things were shaping for us all. A woman's jealousy was with us, and so a woman's will!"

"Madam," said I, my hand at the fastening of the door, "we have exchanged pledges. Now we exchange places. It is you who are the messenger, not myself. There is a message in your hands. I know, whether you ever served a monarchy. Come, you shall see that our republic has neither secrets nor hypocrites."

On the instant she was not shrewd and tactful woman of the world, not student, but once more coquette and woman of impulse. She looked at me with mockery and invitation alike in her great dark eyes, even as I threw down the chain at the door and opened it wide for her to pass.

"Is that my only reward?" she asked, smiling as she fumbled at a glove.

In reply, I bent and kissed the fingers of her ungloved hand. They were so warm and tender that I had been different than I was had I not felt the blood tingle in all my body in the impulse of the moment to do more than kiss her fingers.

Had I done so—had I not thought of Elizabeth—then, as in my heart I still believe, the flag of England to-day would rule Oregon and the Pacific; and it would float to-day along the Rio Grande; and it would menace a divided north and south. Instead of respecting a strong and indivisible Union which owns one flag and dreads none in the world.

CHAPTER VII.

Regarding Elizabeth.

Without woman the two extremities of this life would be destitute of succor and the middle would be devoid of pleasure.—Proverbs.

In some forgotten parrot of this country, as I do not doubt, yellowed with age, stained and undistinguishable, lost among uncareful-for-relics of another day, there may be records of that interview between two strange personalities, John Calhoun and Helena von Ritz, in the arrangement of which I played the part above described. I was not at that time privileged to have much more than a guess at the nature of the interview. Indeed, other things now occupied my mind. I was very much in love with Elizabeth Churchill.

Of these matters I need to make some mention. My father's plantation was one of the old ones in Maryland. That of the Churchills lay across a low range of mountains and in another county from us, but our families had long been friends. I had known Elizabeth from the time she was a tall, slim girl, boon companion ever to her father, old Daniel Churchill; for her mother she had lost when she was still young. The Churchills maintained a city establishment in the environs of Washington itself, although that was not much removed from their plantation in the old state of Maryland. Elmhurst, this Washington estate was called, and it was well known there, with its straight road approaching and its great trees and its wide-opened halls—whereby the road itself seemed to run straight through the house and appear beyond—and its tall white pillars and hospitable galleries, now in the spring-time inclosed in green, I need not state that now, having finished the business of the day, or rather, of the night, Elmhurst, home of Elizabeth, was my immediate Mecca.

I had clad myself as well as I could in the fashion of my time, and flattered myself, as I looked in my little mirror, that I made none such bad figure of a man. I was tall enough, and straight, this with long hours of riding in the saddle, bronzed to a good color, and if health did not show on my face, at least I felt it myself in the lightness of my step. In the contentedness of my heart with all of life, in my general assurance that all in the world meant well toward me and that everything in the world would do well by me.

As to Elizabeth Churchill, it might have been in line with a Maryland custom had she generally been known as Betty; but Betty she never was called.

I listened to me gravely and, it seemed to me, with none of that enthusiasm which I would have well come. As to my prospects, he questioned me. My record was not unfamiliar to him. So, gaining confidence at last under the influence of what I knew were worthy motives, and which certainly were irrefragable of themselves, so far as I was concerned, I asked him if he might not soon make an end of this, and taking chances as they were, allow my wedding with Elizabeth to take place at my very distant date.

"Why as to that, of course I do not know what my girl will say," went on Mr. Daniel Churchill, purring up his lips.

"Oh, of course—that," I answered; "Miss Elizabeth and I—"

I suppose this is the way of women. At times I have been impatient with it, knowing my own mind well enough.

At least now, in my tight-strapped trousers and my long blue coat and my deep embroidered waistcoat and my high stock, my shining boots and my tall beaver, I made my way on my well-groomed horse up to the gates of old Elmhurst; and as I rode I pondered and I dreamed.

But Miss Elizabeth was not at home. It seemed, Mr. Daniel Churchill, rather poorly, and now just a trifle red of face, met me instead. It was not an encounter for which I devoutly wished, but one which I knew it was the right of both of us to expect ere long. Seeing the occasion propitious I plunged at once in medias res. Part of the time explanatory, again apologetic, and yet again, I trust, assertive, although always blundering and red and awkward, I told the father of my intended, of my own wishes, my prospects and my plans.

"I listened to me gravely and, it seemed to me, with none of that enthusiasm which I would have well come. As to my prospects, he questioned me. My record was not unfamiliar to him. So, gaining confidence at last under the influence of what I knew were worthy motives, and which certainly were irrefragable of themselves, so far as I was concerned, I asked him if he might not soon make an end of this, and taking chances as they were, allow my wedding with Elizabeth to take place at my very distant date."

BERLIN LOCKS OUT 200,000.

Building Trades Are Rent by Titanic Battle with Unions.

Berlin, April 15.—A lockout in the building trades of Germany began last evening. Between 150,000 and 200,000 workers already are affected, but full reports on the situation have not yet arrived at headquarters.

Already the employers of Berlin, Hamburg and Bremen have not yet participated in the movement, and negotiations for a peaceful settlement are continuing in Munich, the lockout is most widespread. Bitter feeling divides the employers and employees. Most of the contractors are determined to work for the defeat of the trade unions, but it is estimated that ten per cent. of the employers have declined to join the lockout, being in sympathy with the men's demands.

The lockout was caused by the action of delegates representing the Socialist Federation of Trades Unions, comprising some 300,000 bricklayers, carpenters, masons and laborers, who recently proposed, by a unanimous vote, a projected wage tariff of the Master Builders' union.

PEEPS AT ACTRESSES; IS SHOT.

Evansville Man Fatally Wounded by Woman Employee of Circus.

Evansville, Ind., April 15.—James Simpson, aged thirty-five and married, was shot and killed on the Pottery grounds, where a circus was opening the season. It is said several men and boys had been hanging around the dressing tent of the actresses and one of the actresses became enraged and shot through the canvas.

Mrs. Jennie Mallor of Danville, Ill., wardrobe mistress, was arrested and confessed to the shooting.

Old Miracle Plays.

In the old miracle plays, "Adoration of the Three Kings" was always represented by members of the Jewelers' guild, each act or scene of the plays being given by a separate corporation, which defrayed all the expenses.

Once more throughout the land resounds
A bunch of sweet, familiar sounds.
As though without the least excuse
The college children had broke loose
The racket is not that at all;
It's just the ancient cry,
Play ball!
Play ball!

Hurry Ends in Indigestion

Use your teeth on your food or your stomach will suffer. Quick lunches, hurried eating, bolting food, are sure to end, sooner or later, in some form of indigestion, more or less troublesome.

Beecham's Pills

quickly relieve the distress caused by hurried eating. They act directly on the stomach nerves and actually help the food to digest and assimilate. They are particularly good for nervous dyspepsia, bloating, hiccoughs, bitter taste in the mouth, and flatulence. With reasonable care in eating, Beecham's Pills will soon

Worms

"Cascarets are certainly fine. I gave a friend one when the doctor was treating him for cancer of the stomach. The next morning he passed four pieces of a tape worm. He then got a box and in three days he passed a tape worm 45 feet long. It was Mr. Matt Fick, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. I am quite a worker for Cascarets. I use them myself and find them beneficial. I can't say any disease caused by impure blood, for most any disease caused by impure blood."
